Rhetoric and Reality. The Internet Challenge for Democracy in Asia

Jeffrey Barlow
Pacific University

Recommended Citation

This Book/Site Review is brought to you for free and open access by the Interface: The Journal of Education, Community and Values at CommonKnowledge. It has been accepted for inclusion in Volume 5 (2005) by an authorized administrator of CommonKnowledge. For more information, please contact CommonKnowledge@pacificu.edu.
Rhetoric and Reality. The Internet Challenge for Democracy in Asia

Description

Rights
Terms of use for work posted in CommonKnowledge.
Rhetoric and Reality. The Internet Challenge for Democracy in Asia

Posted on April 1, 2005 by Editor

Review by Jeffrey Barlow <barlowj@pacificu.edu>
Editor, Interface

The nature of collections of individual essays often is that they present a broad view but no unifying perspective. This work, however, has a strong editorial voice, a very useful introduction, and is part of a series with an overt purpose. The purpose is, as Banerjee states:

Everywhere in the world, the advent of the Internet has been seen as a new catalyst for political freedom and democracy. Scholars and pundits have acclaimed the birth of the Internet as a new dawn of global democracy and have hailed the Internet as an insurmountable threat to authoritarian regimes. This book constitutes a humble effort to assess the veracity of these claims in the Asian context. (p. 1)

The countries discussed, by highly accomplished local voices, include China, India, Indonesia, Japan, South Korea, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore, and Thailand. Each of these chapters gives a marvelous perspective on the impact of the Internet in each country, focused sharply on the question of the consequences for the development of democracy.

The credentials of the authors vary, but most are either scholars who study the Internet professionally, or are in the legal profession of their respective states. One is a journalist, and most are prolific observers of their countries and the local impact of the Internet.

The authors’ findings, of course, vary, as do the histories, cultures, and current political economies of the nations themselves. But each chapter is well worth reading, whether one is interested in the impact of the Internet (Each chapter gives an introduction to the beginnings of the Internet in the respective countries.) or in local political control over the Internet. Each chapter also gives an overview of the development of legal, and sometimes, extra-legal controls exercised by local governments.

We learn, for example, that although each of the countries' governments tends to see the Internet as an opportunity for economic growth, they also see it as a threat to control or stability, and usually exercise a wide variety of subtle and not so subtle means of reining it in. India, although a mature democracy relative to other Asian states, has, for example, used tax investigations to punish particularly influential voices. Others, like China, attempt to control the distribution of and access to electronic materials.

The book has many worthwhile chapters, but the most important one is Banerjee's introduction, "Internet and Democracy in Asia: A Critical Exploratory Journey." It is particularly significant, I think, for American readers.

Americans will encounter here a very different perspective on the international development of democracy. One soon sees, for example, that Banerjee believes that democracy will take many forms in the future, and that he has some real doubts about the present directions of American democracy, seeing it as a “thin” or “plebiscite” democracy which has become more a process than a means of achieving equality and justice (p. 6). Accordingly, it is less than the full democracy he hopes will eventually take root in Asia.

Readers interested in either the international impact of the Internet, or in the larger question of how it will impact the development of democracy, can learn much from this work. Those anticipating doing business dependent upon electronic communications in all or part of Asia will also find it relevant.

Reviewed by Jeffrey Barlow

Editor, Interface

This entry was posted in Uncategorized by Editor. Bookmark the permalink [http://bcis.pacificu.edu/interface/?p=3107].

8 THOUGHTS ON “RHETORIC AND REALITY. THE INTERNET CHALLENGE FOR DEMOCRACY IN ASIA”

dating on January 30, 2014 at 11:34 AM said:

Thank you to your sharing! I have the same problem.
headlines

on January 30, 2014 at 1:57 PM said:

Awesome talk! Thank you so significantly for hosting Great.

Kenneth Beemon

on January 30, 2014 at 6:14 PM said:

Simply want to say your article is as astonishing. The clarity in your put up is simply spectacular and i can think you’re knowledgeable in this subject. Well together with your permission allow me to seize your RSS feed to stay updated with approaching post. Thank you one million and please carry on the rewarding work.

plotka

on February 1, 2014 at 1:47 AM said:

Awesome talk! Thank you so significantly for hosting Great.

wydarzenia

on February 1, 2014 at 3:53 AM said:

Awesome talk! Thank you so a lot for hosting Great.

9ja

on February 3, 2014 at 1:33 AM said:

“Great, thanks for sharing this article post. Appreciate it Once again and again. Terrific.”
temat

on February 3, 2014 at 1:54 AM said:

Hmm it seems like your web site ate my very first comment (it was quite long) so I guess I am going to just sum it up what I had written and say, I’m thoroughly enjoying your blog. I as well am an aspiring blog writer but I’m even now new to everything. Do you have any recommendations for novice blog writers? I’d absolutely appreciate it. |

Woah! I’m incredibly loving the template/theme of this blog. It is simple, yet effective. A lot of times it is complicated to have that “perfect balance” among user friendliness and visual appearance. I must say you’ve done a superb work with this. Also, the blog loads extremely fast for me on Safari. Outstanding Blog! |

Do you mind if I quote two your articles as extended as I offer credit and sources back for ones site? My blog internet site is during the same area of interest as yours and my traffic would really benefit from lots of the details you supply here. Please allow me know if this alright with you. Thank you! |

Hi would you mind letting me know which webhost you are using? I’ve loaded your blog in Three several web browsers and I need to say this blog loads much faster then most. Can you recommend a great internet hosting provider at a sincere price? Thanks, I enjoy it! |

Fantastic internet site you have right here but I was wanting to know in case you knew of any discussion boards that cover the exact same topics talked about here? I’d incredibly love to be a component of community wherever I can get guidance from other experienced people that share the exact same interest. If you have any suggestions, please let me know. Numerous thanks! |

Hey! That is my very first comment here so I just wanted to give a quick shout out and say I really enjoy reading your blog posts. Can you recommend any other blogs/websites/forums that go over the same topics? Enjoy it! |

Do you’ve a spam dilemma on this website; I also am a blogger, and I was curious about your situation; we have created some nice practices and we are searching to exchange approaches with other folks, please shoot me an email if interested.

nigeria social network

on February 4, 2014 at 10:18 AM said:

Hello there, You’ve done a very good job. I am going to actually digg it and personally recommend to my friends. I am certain they’ll be benefited from this website.