My dear Mr. —

I yesterday had a long visit with Mr. ...

It was my pleasant indeed to meet him & find so much interest in The College & reading to help. I was prepared to excuse him from a indifferent.

He did not tell me but from another I learned that he is soon to be married to a Miss Baggis of Forester, a young lady of about 20. Mr. Wiles. Mr. etc. to-morrow for 4s was a member of the Sundays Church which she attends. She is not a professing Christian. This I judge to learn. The Mrs. says she is a curious person.

Mr. Rygell is a most worthy man. While writing to Mr. G. I mentioned in connection with a lady writing also a cousin of Mrs. G. She said that Mrs. G. died as beautifully as she lived. resign.

happy - none could be tempted to complain, feeling that God had been so exceeding kind to her always that she had almost always that she had almost always that she was not afflicted enough, - writing death as his dis.
...just before her last decline, as upon the 29th of May she must die. She said she must not have left Oregon, if she had supposed that she was not to return. She would have been glad to have been buried there. She has identified herself with Oregon. I felt that her memory must be more vivid than the any other. I shall always cherish the memory of Mrs. Coebell.

I wish on my going to leave you as Mrs. Nichols is. Mr. Babin advises me to get $30,000, but it is to return again in a few years to get the balance if the $30,000. As times are so unfavorable now, but until there is a crash, think...
I do not yet know. I shall stay till I get the full and true, as it is. It is easier to be away from you than to go back to struggle against difficulties which I know. I trust how to return to this world again. Friends, friends, friends. You want to finish it now. So courage.

Friends, your Father window go to begone. Now is the time, if you. To tell him a long time.

The Baptist Church
in Portland want a Pastor. Mr. C. is looking for one and are going to help him. I am greatly interested to have a poor man. Three are pleased with Mr. Miles. I think it is either that people will gi