FURTHERING ACCESS TO THE WORLD’S INFORMATION
This fall issue of the OLA Quarterly has been edited by Ellen Fader of Multnomah County Public Library and Curtis Kiefer of the Corvallis-Benton County Public Library. Both Ellen and Curtis are youth services librarians and were very excited about devoting an issue of the Quarterly to issues facing youth services librarians. Many of the articles will address the opportunities awaiting all librarians: partnerships and collaborations, new technology, library programs, and LSCA grants for improving children’s services. We are delighted to print an article written by a young adult on what libraries have meant to him in the past and what he will look for in the future. You will also find a reprint of Graham Salisbury’s speech from the April Oregon Library Association Conference in Portland. And what would a discussion of youth services be without story time?
